

Interviewee: Every day, [instructor] would have a different topic that we would talk about. He would just ask questions. I can't really remember particular examples. It's just the questions he asked and follow-up questions that really make you think twice about things in general. If you thought you wanted to write something going in this direction, he might ask you questions. Then you're, like, "Oh, wait." Actually, I could see it going in this direction.

It kind of just opened up the realm to experiment more than I typically would. It was just nice with having more options to experiment with writing through those conversations.